MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff is suing regarding two temporary seizures of cash by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (“DEA”) during domestic air travel in 2023. In the April incident, Plaintiff alleges he was traveling with $332,000 in cash from Dallas to Orange County when Transportation Security Administration (“TSA”) officers saw it during airport security screening and reported it to the DEA, who in turn seized the cash for civil asset forfeiture. See First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) ¶¶ 9-10, 14-15, 22, 37-38. The cash was returned to him upon submission of a claim for its return. Id. ¶ 39. In the October incident, Plaintiff alleges he was traveling with approximately $65,000 in cash from Boston to Los Angeles via Dallas when similar events transpired, leading to the seizure of his cash by DEA agents in Dallas. See FAC at ¶¶ 43-46, 48, 56-59. Plaintiff later received return of these funds as well. Id. at ¶ 61.

Plaintiff brings claims of false arrest, trespass to chattels, and invasion of privacy under the Federal Tort Claims Act (“FTCA”) for both incidents. The Court lacks jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s trespass to chattels and invasion of privacy claims which are barred by the detention of goods exception to the FTCA. The Court also lacks jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s invasion of privacy claim which is barred by the discretionary function exception. Moreover, all of Plaintiff’s claims fail as there are insufficient facts to state a cognizable claim as to either incident.

Further, Plaintiff’s claims regarding the October incident should be dismissed because they were not administratively exhausted at the time this action was filed, and venue is improper.

II. PLAINTIFF’S ALLEGATIONS

Per the FAC, the first incident occurred on April 3, 2023 when Plaintiff traveled from Dallas to Orange County carrying approximately $332,000, which he obtained as part of his business trading cryptocurrency for cash. FAC ¶¶ 9-12. Plaintiff alleges that TSA officers “took notice of Plaintiff’s cash” when Plaintiff “presented himself” at a

1 security checkpoint for screening at the Dallas airport. Id. ¶¶ 14-15. He further alleges
2 that TSA “directly or indirectly” reported Plaintiff’s carrying of the cash to DEA along
3 with his personal information. Id. ¶ 22. Plaintiff alleges that once he landed in California,
4 DEA officers were waiting for him and he was told that he may not leave with his bags
5 and that he must allow a search of his bags. Id. ¶¶ 23-26. Plaintiff alleges the DEA
6 officer searched his bags even though he did not consent. Id. ¶¶ 27, 30. Plaintiff’s money
7 was seized by a DEA officer. Id. ¶¶ 37-38. Plaintiff’s funds were returned to him in 8 December 2023, after he filed an administrative claim. Id. ¶ 39.

9 The second incident alleged occurred on October 10, 2023, when Plaintiff traveled 10 from Boston to Los Angeles via Dallas carrying approximately $65,000. Id. ¶¶ 43-45.
11 Plaintiff alleges that Boston TSA officers took notice of his cash and tipped off the DEA.
12 Id. at 46. In Dallas, Plaintiff alleges that he was told that he may not leave with his bags
13 and that a dog would be searching his bags. Id. ¶¶ 48-50. The dog “alerted” on Plaintiff’s 14 bag, at which point he was told the bag would be seized and a search warrant obtained.
15 Id. ¶¶ 56-58. Plaintiff filed an administrative claim and received return of these funds as 16 well. See Id. ¶ 61 (alleging agreement to return funds).

17 Plaintiff submitted an FTCA administrative claim regarding the October incident
18 on November 30, 2023. He filed his original complaint in this action on March 16, 2024.
19 See ECF 1. He filed the FAC on July 12, 2024. See ECF 19.

20 III. LEGAL STANDARDS

21 A. Rule 12(b)(1)

22 A plaintiff bringing a complaint must allege sufficient facts to establish federal 23 subject matter jurisdiction. Leite v. Crane Co., 749 F.3d 1117, 1121 (9th Cir. 2014).
24 Courts presume lack of subject matter jurisdiction unless a plaintiff shows otherwise.
25 Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377-378 (1994); see In re
26 Wilshire Courtyard, 729 F.3d 1279, 1284 (9th Cir. 2013). Rule 12(b)(1) motions may 27 challenge jurisdiction facially or factually. Safe Air for Everyone v. Meyer, 373 F.3d
28 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2004). “In a facial attack, the challenger asserts that the allegations

1 contained in a complaint are insufficient on their face to invoke federal jurisdiction. By 2 contrast, in a factual attack, the challenger disputes the truth of the allegations that, by
3 themselves, would otherwise invoke federal jurisdiction.” Id. In considering a factual 4 attack on jurisdiction, a court “may review evidence beyond the complaint without 5 converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment.” Id. (citation
6 omitted). Rule 12(b)(1) requires dismissal of a complaint if a court concludes that it
7 lacks subject matter jurisdiction following consideration of both the complaint’s
8 allegations and extrinsic evidence concerning the existence of jurisdiction. McCarthy v.
9 United States, 850 F.2d 558, 560 (9th Cir. 1988).

10 B. Rule 12(b)(6)

11 Dismissal under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 12(b)(6) is appropriate 12 when a complaint, like Plaintiff’s, fails “to state a claim upon which relief can be 13 granted.” To survive a motion under Rule 12(b)(6), a complaint must contain “enough
14 facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 15 550 U.S. 544, 554-55, 570 (2007). A complaint meets this standard only if it “pleads
16 factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant
17 is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009).

18 Although allegations of material fact are taken as true and construed in the light 19 most favorable to the plaintiff, see Love v. United States, 915 F.2d 1242, 1245 (9th Cir.
20 1989), “the liberal pleading standard . . . applies only to a plaintiff’s factual allegations.”
21 Neitze v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 330 n. 9 (1989). A complaint that offers mere labels 22 and conclusions or a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause will not do, nor will 23 a complaint suffice if it tenders “naked assertion[s] devoid of further factual 24 enhancement.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. The Detention of Goods Exception Bars Plaintiff's Trespass to Chattels and Invasion of Privacy Claims

1. The United States Has Not Waived Sovereign Immunity for Claims Related to the Detention of Goods

28 U.S.C. § 2680 provides for certain categories of claims expressly exempt from the FTCA's waiver of sovereign immunity, "severely limit[ing]" the scope of that waiver. Morris v. United States, 521 F.2d 872, 874 (9th Cir. 1975). "If a plaintiff's tort claim falls within one of the exceptions, the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction." Id. In determining whether § 2680 bars a proposed claim, "[the court] 'look[s] beyond the labels' and evaluate[s] the alleged 'conduct on which the claim is based.'" DaVinci Aircraft, Inc. v. United States, 926 F.3d 1117, 1123 (9th Cir. 2019) (quoting Thomas-Lazear v. FBI, 851 F.2d 1202, 1207 (9th Cir. 1988) and Mt. Homes, Inc. v. U.S., 912 F.2d 352, 356 (9th Cir. 1990)). "Thus, if the governmental conduct underlying a claim falls within an exception outlined in section 2680, the claim is barred, no matter how the tort is characterized." Id. (citing Mt. Homes, 912 F.2d at 356).

One such exception to the FTCA's sovereign immunity waiver is for claims "arising in respect of ... the detention of any goods, merchandise, or other property by any officer of customs or excise or any other law enforcement officer." 28 U.S.C. § 2680(c). Thus, absent some other applicable waiver of immunity, the United States enjoys sovereign immunity for all claims arising from the detention of property—even claims for negligent handling of the property—and courts lack subject matter jurisdiction to hear such claims. Kosak v. U.S., 465 U.S. 848, 854 (1984). The detention exception is a broad retention of sovereign immunity, which "sweep[s] within the exception all injuries associated in any way with the 'detention' of goods." Id.

Here, Plaintiff's trespass to chattels and invasion of privacy claims fall squarely within the detention of goods exception to the FTCA. Plaintiff's trespass to chattels claim clearly "aris[es] in respect of" the detention of his currency by DEA. 28 U.S.C. §

1 2680(c); FAC ¶¶ 38-40, 77 (alleging that a DEA officer “dispossessed Plaintiff of his
2 belongings,” by seizing Plaintiff’s money). Plaintiff’s invasion of privacy claim
3 complains that TSA’s alleged reporting of Plaintiff’s currency to DEA led to the seizure
4 of Plaintiff’s currency. FAC ¶¶ 81-88 (alleging that TSA officer did not have a warrant, 5 probable cause, or reasonable suspicion of a crime, yet reported the cash to the DEA). At 6 its core, this claim, like the trespass to chattels claim, is about the seizure of Plaintiff’s
7 currency. Accordingly, absent a further waiver of sovereign immunity, the United States
8 enjoys sovereign immunity for these claims.

9           2.     The CAFRA Re-Waiver of Sovereign Immunity Applies Only to 10                   Claims Based on Injury or Loss of the Seized Property by the 11                   Government

12           In 2000, Congress passed the Civil Asset Forfeiture Reform Act of 2000
13 (“CAFRA”), a comprehensive reform of forfeiture laws and procedures in the nation.
14 See Pub. L. No. 106–185, 114 Stat. 202. Section 3 of CAFRA, codified at 28 U.S.C. §
15 2680(c), titled “Compensation for Damage to Seized Property,” amended the FTCA’s 16 detention exception to allow for certain claims “based on injury or loss of goods, 17 merchandise, or other property, while in the possession of any officer of customs or 18 excise or any other law enforcement officer.” See Pub. L. No. 106–185, § 3, 114 Stat.
19 202. Congress through “CAFRA canceled the detention of goods exception and restored 20 the waiver of sovereign immunity - or ‘re-waived’ sovereign immunity - with respect to 21 certain forfeiture-related seizures.” Foster v. U.S., 522 F.3d 1071, 1075 (9th Cir. 2008).
22 In CAFRA, “Congress was predominately concerned with making property owners 23 whole where the government unsuccessfully brings a forfeiture action and damages or 24 loses the seized property while the action is pending.” Smoke Shop LLC v. U.S., 761 F.3d 25 779, 784 (7th Cir. 2014).

26           Waivers of the United States’ sovereign immunity must be “unequivocally 27 expressed in the statutory text” and “[a]ny such waiver must be strictly construed in 28 favor of the United States, and not enlarged beyond what the language of the statute

1 requires.” U.S. v. Idaho ex rel. Dir., Idaho Dep’t of Water Res., 508 U.S. 1, 6-7 (1993)
2 (internal quotations and citations omitted).

3 CAFRA’s re-waiver requires an injury or loss to the goods or property while the 4 property is in the law enforcement officers’ possession. See, e.g. Bah v. U.S., 91 F.4th
5 116, 121 (3d Cir. 2024) (affirming dismissal of plaintiff’s claims where cash was 6 returned to plaintiff after seizure and plaintiff did not allege any injury to or loss of his 7 cash); Robinson v. U.S. Dep’t of Justice, 2020 WL 635658, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 11, 8 2020) (holding that CAFRA sovereign immunity “waiver applies only insofar as 9 Plaintiff sues for harm to or loss of her property in government custody.”); Ali v. Fed.
10 Bureau of Prisons, 552 U.S. 214, 239 (2008) (Kennedy, J., dissenting) (Section 11 2680(c)(1) “establishes that [certain government officials] shall be liable in tort for 12 damage to the property when the owner’s interest in the goods in the end is not forfeited 13 (and when other conditions apply)”); Hakizimana v. U.S., 2017 WL 1536491, *2 (N.D.
14 Ga. Mar. 31, 2017), adopted by, 2017 WL 1519887 (N.D. Ga. Apr. 27, 2017) (“The 15 amended complaint alleges that the government has detained Plaintiff’s property, not 16 that it has injured or lost the property, and does not allege any facts supporting a finding 17 that any of § 2680(c)’s other requirements are met. Section 2680(c) thus bars relief.”).

18 Here, Plaintiff does not allege any injury or loss to his currency while in the 19 DEA’s possession. Rather, Plaintiff affirmatively alleges the return of/agreement to 20 return his currency. FAC ¶¶ 40, 61. Therefore, Plaintiff’s claim does not fall within the 21 scope of Section 2680(c)’s re-waiver of sovereign immunity and is barred by sovereign 22 immunity.<sup>1</sup>

23
24
25
26
27 <sup>1</sup> While the Court need not reach this determination as Plaintiff fails to allege any 28 injury or loss to his currency, but he also does not allege sufficient facts to determine whether the seizure satisfied the four additional elements of 28 U.S.C. § 2680(c)(1)-(4).

B. The Discretionary Function Exception Bars Plaintiff's Invasion of Privacy Claim

1. The Discretionary Function Exception

The discretionary function exception to the FTCA (hereafter, the “DFE”), bars claims against the United States which are “based upon the exercise or performance or the failure to exercise or perform a discretionary function or duty on the part of a federal agency or an employee of the Government, whether or not the discretion involved be abused.” 28 U.S.C. § 2680(a). This exception “marks the boundary between Congress’ willingness to impose tort liability upon the United States and its desire to protect certain governmental activities from exposure to suit by private individuals.” Chadd v. U.S., 794 F.3d 1104, 1108 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting U.S. v. S.A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines), 467 U.S. 797, 808 (1984)). It is designed to “prevent judicial ‘second guessing’ of legislative and administrative decisions grounded in social, economic, and political policy through the medium of an action in tort.” Id. (quoting Varig Airlines, 467 U.S. at 814); see Begay v. U.S., 768 F.2d 1059, 1064 (9th Cir. 1985) (“[I]f judicial review would encroach upon th[e] type of balancing done by an agency, then the [DFE] would apply.”).

“In order to determine whether the [DFE] applies, the court must engage in a two-step inquiry.” Nurse v. U.S., 226 F.3d 996, 1001 (9th Cir. 2000). “First, the court must determine whether the challenged conduct involves an element of judgment or choice. Second, if the conduct involves some element of choice, the court must determine whether the conduct implements social, economic or political policy considerations.” Id. (citations omitted).

In conducting this inquiry, the Supreme Court has emphasized that the DFE “is not confined to the policy or planning level” and extends “to the actions of Government agents” taken “in the course of day-to-day activities.” United States v. Gaubert, 499 U.S. 315, 323, 325, 334 (1991); Gonzalez v. U.S., 814 F.3d 1022, 1029 (9th Cir. 2016) (“Courts have consistently held that where . . . a government agent’s performance of an obligation requires that agent to make judgment calls, the [DFE] applies.”). “It is also important to bear in mind that the decision giving rise to tort liability ‘need not be actually grounded in policy considerations, but must be, by its nature, susceptible to a policy analysis.’” Chadd, 794 F.3d at 1109 (quoting Miller v. U.S., 163 F.3d 591, 593 (9th Cir. 1998)) (emphasis added). The focus “is not on the agent’s subjective intent” in exercising discretion, but rather on “the nature of the actions taken and whether they are susceptible to policy analysis.” Id. (quoting Gaubert, 499 U.S. at 325). Likewise, it is irrelevant whether the actual conduct challenged in a particular case amounted to negligence. Parsons v. U.S., 811 F. Supp. 1411, 1416 (E.D. Cal. 1992) (“[N]egligence is simply irrelevant to the [DFE] inquiry’ because § 2680(a) offers immunity ‘whether or not the discretion involved be abused.’” (citation omitted)).

Although the United States bears the burden of proving that the DFE applies, a plaintiff must nonetheless allege a claim “that is facially outside the [DFE] in order to survive a motion to dismiss.” Doe v. Holy See, 557 F.3d 1066, 1084 (9th Cir. 2009) (per curiam) (quoting Prescott v. U.S., 973 F.2d 696, 702 & n.4 (9th Cir. 1992)); see Ard v. F.D.I.C., 770 F. Supp. 2d 1029, 1034 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (requiring the plaintiffs to identify whether any federal statute, regulation, or policy applied to the conduct challenged in their lawsuit). Accordingly, if the plaintiff cannot plead specific facts sufficient to show that the challenged conduct did not involve a discretionary function, the plaintiff cannot lay claim to the FTCA’s waiver of sovereign immunity. See, e.g., Gates v. U.S., 2018 WL 3303019, at *2–3 (S.D. Cal. July 5, 2018) (quoting Gordon-Gonzalez v. U.S., 873 F.3d 32, 37 (1st Cir. 2017)).

2. The Challenged Conduct of TSA is Discretionary in Nature

Here, TSA MD 100.4(6)(C)(2) reflects TSA’s policy regarding large amounts of currency. It states that “traveling with large amounts of currency is not illegal[,]” but that “[w]hen currency appears to be indicative of criminal activity, TSA will report the matter to the appropriate authorities.” TSA, TSA Management Directive No. 100.4 [hereinafter TSA MD 100.4], <https://www.tsa.gov/sites/default/files/foia->

1 readingroom/transportation_security_searches_100.4.pdf (last visited August 14, 2024)<sup>2</sup>.
2 It lists examples of factors that may indicate that cash is related to criminal activity such 3 as “the quantity, packaging, circumstances of discovery, or method by which the cash is 4 carried, including concealment.” Id.

5 There are no statutes or regulations that expressly direct how TSA must respond to 6 discoveries of bulk currency, meaning the formulation of a policy on this point is 7 discretionary. Moreover, the terms and structure of the TSA’s policy regarding currency 8 referrals, (e.g. “appears to be indicative of” and listing factors to consider,) evinces that 9 the decision whether to refer a discovery of currency is discretionary. Id.

10 Plaintiff complains that “other than the mere existence of cash” there was no 11 reason for TSA to suspect Plaintiff was “engaged in criminal behavior or that the 12 currency was otherwise forfeitable.” FAC ¶ 21. But the determination of whether large 13 amounts of currency “appears to be indicative of criminal activity” is clearly left to the 14 TSA agent’s judgment, satisfying the first step of the DFE analysis. If in the agent’s 15 judgment the currency appears to be indicative of criminal activity, based on the 16 particular considerations attendant to its discovery during screening, it should then be 17 reported to the appropriate authorities. TSA MD 100.4(6)(C)(2) (“TSA will report the 18 matter to the appropriate authorities.”)<sup>3</sup>

19 Evaluated as a whole, the policy is discretionary in nature because it requires the 20 TSA employee to make an initial judgment call as to what “appears to be indicative of 21 criminal activity.” TSA MD 100.4(6)(C)(2); see also Gonzalez, 814 F.3d at 1029
22 (holding that while FBI guidelines used mandatory-sounding language “the field office
23 shall promptly transmit the information [concerning criminal activity] to a law

24 <sup>2</sup> A court can take judicial notice of a government’s website. See EVO Brands,
25 LLC v. Al Khalifa Group, LLC, 657 F.Supp.3d 1312, 1321 (C.D. Cal. 2023) (citations 26 omitted).

27 <sup>3</sup> The prior section of the policy also more broadly states that when “evidence of 28 crimes unrelated to transportation security” is discovered, “TSA personnel shall refer it to a supervisor or law enforcement official for appropriate action” which satisfies a TSA employee’s “obligation to report known or suspected violations of Federal law.” TSA MD 100.4(6)(C)(1) (citing TSA MD 1100.73-5).

1 enforcement agency,” as a whole the guidelines were discretionary as it required agent to 2 make judgment calls as to credibility, seriousness, etc.); Conrad v. U.S., 447 F.3d 760, 3 765-66 (9th Cir. 2006) (holding that where a criminal procedural rule provided that 4 government “must take the defendant without unnecessary delay” before a judge,
5 “exercise of judgment” was required in determining “how much delay is necessary”).

6 3. The Nature of the Action is One Susceptible to Policy Analysis

7 Once the Government shows that a policy allows for the exercise of discretion, “it 8 must be presumed that the agent’s acts are grounded in policy when exercising that 9 discretion” and “the burden shifts to Plaintiffs to identify particular acts and decisions 10 that were either (1) mandatorily prescribed by statute, regulation, or policy, or (2) were 11 not ‘susceptible to policy analysis.’” Dichter-Mad Fam. Partners, LLP v. U.S., 707 F.
12 Supp. 2d 1016, 1035, 1039-40 (C.D. Cal. 2010), aff’d & adopted as the opinion of the 13 court, 709 F.3d 749, 750 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting Gaubert, 499 U.S. at 323-34).

14 Here, the determination of whether discovery of large amounts of currency could 15 be indicative of criminal activity not only involves judgment by the TSA employee(s) on 16 the scene, but the very nature of such a decision is susceptible to policy analysis as it 17 requires, inter alia, a balancing of privacy interests, public safety, and national security.
18 Because the TSA’s decisions were susceptible to policy analysis and thus are the type of 19 actions the DFE was designed to protect, the claim should be dismissed. See, e.g., Miller, 20 163 F.3d at 593, 596 (DFE applied where Forest Service’s suppression of wildfire
21 required balancing of safety, costs, resource damage, and protection of private property
22 considerations); Gonzalez, 814 F.3d at 1036 (FBI’s decision of whether to disclose 23 information to local law enforcement “requires considerations of public safety, allocation
24 of scarce resources, and the likelihood of success”); Tobar v. U.S., 731 F.3d 938, 948
25 (9th Cir. 2013) (Coast Guard’s searching and towing of ship fell under policy 26 considerations including enforcement of laws and minimization of intrusion on privacy).

27 Accordingly, because Plaintiff cannot allege that TSA officers were under some 28 unstated, mandatory, and specific obligation to refrain from informing law enforcement

1 of the large sums of cash Plaintiff carried, this claim must be dismissed for lack of 2 subject matter jurisdiction.

3 C. Plaintiff Alleges No Facts to Establish the Elements of False Arrest

4 Under California law, the tort of false arrest is a species of false imprisonment.
5 See Martinez v. City of Los Angeles, 141 F.3d 1373, 1379 (9th Cir. 1998). The elements
6 of false imprisonment are “1) the nonconsensual, intentional confinement of a person, 2)
7 without lawful privilege, and 3) for an appreciable period of time, however brief.”
8 Blaxland v. Commonwealth Dir. of Pub. Prosecutions, 323 F.3d 1198, 1204 (9th Cir.
9 2003) (quotations and citations omitted). “A person is falsely imprisoned if he or she is 10 wrongfully deprived of his or her freedom to leave a particular place by the conduct of 11 another.” Martensen v. Koch, 942 F. Supp. 2d 983, 1001 (N.D. Cal. 2013). “Restraint
12 may be effectuated by means of physical force ..., threat of force or of arrest ..., 13 confinement by physical barriers ..., or by means of any other form of unreasonable
14 duress.” See Fermino v. Fedco, Inc., 7 Cal. 4th 701, 715 (1994).

15 “Obviously, not all personal intercourse between policemen and citizens involves 16 ‘seizures’ of persons. Only when the officer, by means of physical force or show of 17 authority, has in some way restrained the liberty of a citizen may we conclude that a 18 ‘seizure’ has occurred.” Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 19 n. 16 (1968). The Supreme Court
19 has “held repeatedly that mere police questioning does not constitute a seizure.” Muehler
20 v. Mena, 544 U.S. 93, 94 (2005) (quoting Florida v. Bostick, 501 U.S. 429, 434 (1991)
21 (“[A] seizure does not occur simply because a police officer approaches an individual 22 and asks a few questions.”)). “[L]aw enforcement officers do not violate the Fourth
23 Amendment by merely approaching an individual on the street or in another public 24 place, by asking him if he is willing to answer some questions, by putting questions to 25 him if the person is willing to listen...” Florida v. Royer, 460 U.S. 491, 497 (1983).
26 Where an officer in the public area of an airport asks whether an individual would step 27 aside and speak with them, this is “clearly the sort of consensual encounter that 28 implicates no Fourth Amendment interest.” Florida v. Rodriguez, 469 U.S. 1, 5-6 (1984)

1 (citing U.S. v. Mendenhall, 446 U.S. 544, 554 (1980) (opinion of Stewart, J.) and Royer, 2 460 U.S. at 497).

3 Here, Plaintiff alleges that a DEA officer told Plaintiff he may not leave with his 4 bags, and that he did not believe he was free to go based on the officer's uniform,
5 demeanor, and tone. FAC ¶¶ 28-29, 53-54. These allegations are insufficient to state a
6 claim. They fail to demonstrate how Plaintiff was deprived of his freedom by DEA
7 officers or how he was restrained – by threats, physical force, etc. Plaintiff does nothing
8 more than provide “labels and conclusions” and a “formulaic recitation” of the elements
9 of his cause of action. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555. These conclusions are not entitled to 10 the assumption of truth” and does not give rise to the “plausible inference” that Plaintiff
11 was falsely arrested. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 679, 682.

12 Even assuming that Plaintiff did properly allege a false arrest, Plaintiff's claim 13 still fails as he cannot allege any facts to show that the DEA's conduct was without legal 14 authority. To the contrary, his allegations show that the DEA's conduct in stopping him 15 for the purpose of seizing the cash was authorized.

16 Law enforcement officers may conduct a brief investigatory stop or seizure when 17 an officer has reasonable suspicion “supported by articulable facts that criminal activity 18 may be afoot.” U.S. v. Sokolow, 490 U.S. 1, 7 (1989). An investigatory seizure based on 19 reasonable suspicion must be brief and must last no longer than necessary for the officer 20 to investigate the situation with the aim of either confirming or dispelling his or her 21 suspicion. Royer, 460 U.S. at 500. Here, the information allegedly shared by TSA gave 22 DEA officers reasonable suspicion and any brief detention of Plaintiff and his luggage to 23 confirm or dispel this suspicion was reasonable under the Fourth Amendment. Id.; See
24 also United States v. $557,933, 287 F.3d 66 (2d Cir. 2002) (holding that brief detention 25 of a passenger's luggage based on airport screeners' report to law enforcement officers 26 of large amount of money orders in luggage so they had an opportunity to confirm or 27 dispel any suspicions of criminal activity reasonable under the Fourth Amendment).
28 Plaintiffs allegations fit within this authority. Thus, he has not stated a false arrest claim.

D. Plaintiff Alleges Insufficient Facts to State a Trespass to Chattels Claim

To state a claim for trespass to chattels under California law a plaintiff must plead that “an intentional interference with the possession of personal property has proximately caused injury.” Intel. Corp. v. Hamidi, 30 Cal. 4th 1342, 1350-51 (2003). “A trespasser is liable when the trespass diminishes the condition, quality, or value of personal property.” Welenco, Inc. v. Corbell, 126 F. Supp. 3d 1154, 1172 (E.D. Cal. 2015) (citing eBay, Inc. v. Bidder’s Edge, Inc., 100 F. Supp. 2d 1058, 1071 (N.D. Cal. 2000)).

Here, the FAC allegations are insufficient to state a trespass to chattels claim. Plaintiff only alleges that his currency was seized and his funds were or will be returned. FAC ¶¶ 39-40, 61. The FAC contains no non-conclusory allegations of harm to his property from the seizure. Accordingly, Plaintiff fails to state a claim.

E. Plaintiff Fails to State an Invasion of Privacy Claim Under Texas Law

To state an invasion of privacy based on intrusion under Texas law, one must show that there was “an intentional intrusion upon the solitude or seclusion of another or his private affairs or concerns that is highly offensive to a reasonable person.” Cornhill Ins. PLC v. Valsamis, Inc., 106 F.3d 80, 85 (5th Cir. 1997). An action for intrusion upon one’s seclusion is usually found “only when there has been a physical invasion of a person’s property or ... eavesdropping on another’s conversation with the aid of wiretaps, microphones, or spying.” Ross v. Midwest Commc’ns, Inc., 870 F.2d 271, 273 (5th Cir. 1989) (internal citation and quotation omitted). “There cannot be an intrusion where there is no legitimate expectation of privacy.” Graham v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, Nat. Ass’n, 2015 WL 4431199, at *12 (S.D. Tex. July 17, 2015) (citation omitted).

Here, Plaintiff fails to allege facts sufficient to support an invasion of privacy claim. Setting aside legal conclusions, all the FAC alleges is that a TSA officer disclosed the contents of his belongings to the DEA. FAC ¶¶ 22, 46, 82. This falls far short of pleading an “intentional intrusion” on Plaintiff’s “solitude, seclusion, or private affairs” “that would be highly offensive to a reasonable person,” and “resulted in an injury to the Plaintiff.” Aldridge v. Sec., Dep’t of the Air Force, 2005 WL 2738327, at *3 (N.D. Tex.

1 Oct. 24, 2005).

2 Moreover, Plaintiff cannot establish that there was a legitimate expectation of 3 privacy in luggage he presented to a TSA security checkpoint. “Airport screenings which 4 require passengers to walk through a magnetometer and submit carry-on luggage for x-
5 ray screening” are reasonable and do not offend the Fourth Amendment. United States v.
6 Marquez, 410 F.3d 612, 616 (9th Cir. 2005), amended, No. 04-30243, 2005 WL
7 1661572 (9th Cir. July 18, 2005) (citing cases). The constitutionality of an airport 8 screening search “does not depend on consent” and “where an airport screening search is 9 otherwise reasonable and conducted pursuant to statutory authority, 49 U.S.C. § 44901, 10 all that is required is the passenger’s election to attempt entry into the secured area of an 11 airport. Under TSA regulations and procedures, that election occurs when a prospective 12 passenger walks through the magnetometer or places items on the conveyor belt of the x-13 ray machine.” United States v. Aukai, 497 F.3d 955, 961 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing United 14 States v. Biswell, 406 U.S. 311, 315 (1972)).

15 Moreover, multiple Texas courts have held that travelers who attempt to board a 16 commercial aircraft or check their baggage cannot challenge a search of their luggage
17 and person because they lack a reasonable expectation of privacy. E.g., Kjolhede v. State, 18 333 S.W.3d 631, 633-34 (Tex. App. 2009); Turner v. State, 132 S.W.3d 504, 507-08
19 (Tex. App. 2004); see also Florida v. J.L., 529 U.S. 266, 274 (2000) (reasonable 20 expectation of privacy is diminished at airports).

21 Here, Plaintiff twice elected to attempt entry into airport secured area with cash in 22 a carry-on bag. He was twice subjected to a routine airport screening where TSA agents
23 allegedly took note of his cash. As the submission of carry-on luggage for x-ray
24 screening has been held to be reasonable and within the bounds of the Fourth 25 Amendment and under Texas privacy law, Plaintiff lacked a reasonable expectation of 26 privacy in the contents of his luggage.

27 Plaintiff charges that the TSA should not have shared information about the cash
28 with the DEA. But the TSA is not charged, as Plaintiff presumes, with ignoring

1 information that falls outside of its “statutory mission” “of securing the aviation system
2 from terrorism and other security threats to the public.” FAC ¶¶ 18-20. And the mere 3 fact that a screening procedure ultimately reveals contraband other than weapons or 4 explosives does not render it unreasonable, post facto. Marquez, 410 F.3d at 617
5 (quoting United States v. Davis, 482 F.2d 893, 908 (9th Cir. 1973)). Instead, “routine
6 airport screening searches will lead to discovery of contraband and apprehension of law
7 violators. This practical consequence does not alter the essentially administrative nature
8 of the screening process...or render the searches unconstitutional.” Id.

9       The Ninth Circuit has expressly held that nothing precludes TSA officers “from 10 reporting information pertaining to criminal activity, as would any citizen.” United 11 States v. McCarty, 648 F.3d 820, 834 n.16 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting United States v.
12 $124,570 U.S. Currency, 873 F.2d 1240, 1247 (9th Cir. 1989)). And courts have 13 repeatedly held that indicia of criminality discovered as a by-product of airport security 14 searches that are confined in good faith to their purpose may be referred to law
15 enforcement without offending the Fourth Amendment. Aukai, 497 F.3d at 959-61
16 (affirming denial of motion to suppress methamphetamine located after law enforcement 17 officer was summoned by a TSA screener); Marquez, 410 F.3d at 617 (“The screening at 18 issue here is not unreasonable simply because it revealed that Marquez was carrying 19 cocaine rather than C 4 explosives.”); $557,933, 287 F.3d at 84-87 (rejecting argument 20 that incriminating nature of money orders needed to have been immediately noticed by 21 airport screeners and holding that brief detention of luggage so law enforcement officers
22 could confirm or dispel suspicions of criminal activity reasonable under the Fourth
23 Amendment); United States v. Hartwell, 436 F.3d 174, 181 n.13 (3d Cir. 2006) 24 (affirming denial of motion to suppress drugs located during search at airport security 25 checkpoint).

26       Accordingly, even if this Court finds that it has jurisdiction to consider Plaintiff’s 27 invasion of privacy claim, it should nonetheless dismiss for failure to state a claim.
28

F. The Court Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction over Plaintiff's Claims based on the October Incident because Plaintiff Failed to Exhaust Administrative Remedies Before Filing Suit

The FTCA requires the exhaustion of administrative remedies before the commencement of a tort action. 28 U.S.C. § 2675(a); 42 U.S.C. § 233(a). A party may not maintain an action under the FTCA unless they have first presented an administrative claim for money damages to the appropriate Federal agency and thereafter waited until the claim was denied in writing or is deemed denied by the passage of six months. Id.

If a claimant files suit before either of these conditions is satisfied, the action is premature and must be dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. 28 U.S.C. § 2675(a); McNeil v. U.S., 508 U.S. 106, 111-12 (1993) (FTCA requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted before bringing suit was not satisfied by receipt of agency rejection of claim occurring after commencement of suit), citing with approval Jerves v. U.S., 966 F.2d 517 (9th Cir. 1992); Brady v. U.S., 211 F.3d 499, 502-03 (9th Cir. 2000).

As a general rule then, “a premature ‘complaint cannot be cured through amendment, but instead, plaintiff must file a new suit.’” Duplan v. Harper, 188 F.3d 1195, 1199 (10th Cir.1999) (quoting Sparrow v. USPS, 825 F.Supp. 252, 254–55 (E.D. Cal. 1993)); see also Johnson v. Sullivan, 748 F.Supp.2d 1, 14 (D.D.C.2010) (“A failure to exhaust administrative remedies under the FTCA cannot be cured by the passage of time or by amendment of the complaint after the six-month time period has expired.”); Hurt v. Smith, 2011 WL 43474, at *2-3 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 6, 2011) (“Amended complaints are a continuation of the original action” for purposes of assessing subject matter jurisdiction over a prematurely filed FTCA claim). This is because “[a]llowing claimants generally to bring suit under the FTCA before exhausting their administrative remedies and to cure the jurisdictional defect by filing an amended complaint would render the exhaustion requirement meaningless and impose an unnecessary burden on the judicial system.” Duplan, 188 F.3d at 1199.

1 The plaintiff bears the burden of establishing the prerequisites of subject matter
2 jurisdiction. Vacek v. U.S. Postal Serv., 447 F.3d 1248, 1250 (9th Cir. 2006).

3 Here, the FAC states that Plaintiff’s administrative claim for the October incident
4 was submitted on November 30, 2023. FAC ¶ 62. He filed his original complaint in this
5 action less than six months later, on March 16, 2024. See ECF 1. This lack of exhaustion 6 at the time of his original filing cannot be cured through filing an amended complaint.
7 See Johnson, 748 F. Supp. 2d at 14; Duplan, 188 F.3d at 1199.

8 Accordingly, because Plaintiff’s claims based on the October incident were 9 unexhausted as of the date of his original filing, they must be dismissed.

10 G. Plaintiff Fails to Show that Venue is Proper for his October Incident
11 Claims

12 Claims under the FTCA may be brought in “the judicial district where the plaintiff 13 resides or wherein the act or omission complained of occurred.” 28 U.S.C. § 1402(b).
14 When venue is challenged, the plaintiff has the burden of proving that venue is proper in 15 the district in which the complaint was filed. See Piedmont Label Co. v. Sun Garden
16 Packing Co., 598 F.2d 491, 496 (9th Cir. 1979). In deciding whether venue is proper, 17 the Court may consider facts outside the pleadings and does not have to accept the 18 pleadings as true. Kukje Hwajae Ins. Co. v. M/V Hyundai Liberty, 408 F.3d 1250, 1254
19 (9th Cir. 2005). If venue is improper, the district court “shall dismiss, or if it be in the 20 interest of justice, transfer such case” to an appropriate venue. 28 U.S.C. § 1406(a).

21 Here, venue is inappropriate in this district for Plaintiff’s claims arising out of the 22 October incident because the alleged acts or omissions did not occur here and Plaintiff
23 has not established that he resides here. 28 U.S.C. § 1402(b).

24 First, Plaintiff does not allege any events or omissions regarding the October 25 incident that occurred in this District. § 1402(b). Indeed, the FAC makes clear that the 26 seizure took place in Texas. FAC ¶ 48.

27 Second, it is unclear whether Plaintiff resides in this District. 28 U.S.C. § 28 1391(c)(1) (explaining for venue purposes, a person is “deemed to reside in the judicial district in which that person is domiciled.”); Miss. Band of Choctaw Indians v. Holyfield, 490 U.S. 30, 48 (1989) (“[D]omicile is established by physical presence in a place in connection with a certain state of mind concerning one’s intent to remain there.”).

Here, although the FAC alleges that Plaintiff resides in Los Angeles County, Plaintiff provided a Daytona Beach, Florida address in his claim form to the DEA seeking return of his cash.<sup>4</sup> In light of this seemingly contradictory evidence, Plaintiff has not shown that he resides in this District with the intent to remain. Gaudin v. Remis, 379 F.3d 631, 636–37 (9th Cir. 2004) (a person must have the intent to remain indefinitely at a residence in order to be domiciled there). Accordingly, venue is improper in the Central District of California.

V. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Defendant United States respectfully requests that the Court dismiss Plaintiff’s action.

Re: Claim for Asset ID #23-DEA-_____, US$332,200.00 and Demand for Immediate Release Under 18 U.S.C. §983(f)

Dear Forfeiture Counsel:

My name is Jonathan Corbett and my firm has been retained as counsel by Brendan White, who had US$332,200 stolen from his possession on April 3rd, 2023, by a DEA agent or federal taskforce member at SNA airport (Orange County, Calif.). We have not yet received a formal notice or Asset ID number; please see the attached seizure receipt.

My client was charged with no crime, was in possession of no drugs, and the funds seized were lawfully earned funds: to wit, my client operates a currency exchange business. The funds were seized despite the fact that my client filed – and presented to the seizing officer (!!) – a Currency Transaction Report the morning before the seizure. There was not even arguable probable cause for this seizure, which also constituted a false arrest. No reason was given to my client at the time of the seizure, and no reason has since been given to him.

My client makes a claim pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 983(a)(2) for the $332,200 for which he has a possessory interest and was the legitimate assets of his legitimate business. Furthermore, my client demands immediate release of these funds under 18 U.S.C. §

EXHIBIT A

983(f). The continued holding of this large amount of cash will cause my client's business to be seriously injured, a substantial hardship as defined by that statute. None of the circumstances enumerated in §983(f)(8) apply.

We request that you immediately mail a check for the entire amount to my firm at the address above. I may be contacted via e-mail to jon@corbettrights.com or via phone at (310) 684-3870.

Respectfully,
